

Your Mom made cookies, but your brothers/sisters ate them all before you could get one.

You were in line to at the playground slide, someone butted in front of you.

You built a very cool airplane out of legos and set it on your bedroom dresser. When you got home it was on the ground broken.

Your brother took your bicycle without asking.

Someone got into your Halloween candy and ate some of it.

Your friend never wants to play what you want to play.

Your Mom cleaned your room and threw away something important.

Put these situations on objects that are heavy, and read them to the children as you add them to the backpack. Have a child try on the backpack. Ask if it is comfortable. How would they like to go through life carrying it? Then go back through the backpack, and read the situations again, talking about how we can forgive.

Come Follow Me- For Primary "Jesus Christ asks me to forgive others. What object lessons or activities can you think of that would help the children understand what it means to forgive? As you discuss forgiveness, remind the children that forgiving does not mean allowing others to hurt us."
